8. Course Structure and Reading Suggestions : Structured course programme with units: 12 units, arranged into 12 weeks of teaching and two weeks of assessment

Course Aims

Private international law or alternatively the conflict of laws comes into play whenever a court or tribunal is faced with a case that contains a “foreign” element. This course deals with the principles and rules that a court applies in this context to determine primarily (i) whether it has jurisdiction to decide the case and, if so, (ii) what law it should apply.

This course covers three major topics. The first topic is jurisdiction, which in this course will primarily involve international and foreign relations issues relating to personal jurisdiction and pre-scriptive jurisdiction The second and most extensive topic is choice of law: for cases with connections to more than one state or country whose law will be applied to resolve the case? The third topic is the enforceability of judgments rendered in another state’s or nation’s courts, One of the running theme of the entire course will be the south Asian perspective with a special importance to matrimonial issues, contract and torts. Students may be asked to do assignments of these issues which require them to identify the problems consisting of jurisdiction, choice of law rules and execution of judgments. Course will attempt a comparative approach while dealing with the approach of south Asian judiciary.

Week 1 and 2 Conflicts of Laws: Fundamental Concepts.

The module cover topics like origin, and development of conflict of laws. It will examine basic theoretical issues in private international law, including the connecting factors, classification, incidental questions, and function of foreign law in domestic courts. Concepts like Renvoi, domicile and nationality will be deliberated.
